European Private Equity Outlook 2017
Our eighth 'European Private Equity Outlook' reveals how experts view the market and its development in 2017

The 'European Private Equity Outlook 2017' is the eighth consecutive publication in a series launched by Roland Berger in 2010

More than 2,400 experts from private equity investment companies across Europe were contacted for the PE outlook

The results reflect what experts in the market expect for different countries and regions and what they consider to be relevant factors for the private equity business throughout 2017

We hope you enjoy reading this study. We would be happy to receive your feedback and look forward to the opportunity to discuss the results with you in more depth

B. Executive summary
PE professionals are slightly less optimistic with regard to the 2017 outlook for Europe as a result of increasing political uncertainty

1. Half of the PE professionals (52%) surveyed expect a growing number of M&A transactions with PE involvement in 2017 – This constitutes a decrease of 12 ppts. from 2016, indicating a slightly less positive outlook

2. Among the most influential factors for PE-driven M&A in 2017, PE professionals expect a major deterioration in political stability – This comes against the background of a range of political events such as Brexit negotiations, the transition of power in Washington and important elections in France and Germany

3. Geographically, growth in PE activity is expected to be highest in Spain & Portugal, closely followed by Germany – The least favorable outlook is expected for the UK, trailing even Greece in terms of growth expectations

4. Technology & media, pharma & healthcare and consumer goods & retail are expected to yield most M&A deals with PE involvement in 2017 – More than 60% of the participants view these again as leading industries for PE

5. The mid/small-cap segment is expected to gain in importance with regard to M&A with PE involvement – for the large-cap segment, PE professionals' expectations tend to be more mixed

6. New investments will again be the focus of PE activity for 2017, followed by developing portfolio companies – Divesting existing investments will be slightly less relevant, after strong divesting activity in previous years
Executive summary

PE professionals expect increasing competition from Chinese investors – M&A process uncertainty to continue also in 2017

7 Sales to strategic investors and sales to other PE investors are expected to be the most promising exit channels for PE investments in 2017 – IPO, dual track and triple track likely to decrease in 2017

8 The majority (57%) of PE professionals expect an increase in competition for deals from Chinese investors in 2017 – Participants anticipate Chinese investors to have the highest interest in capital goods & engineering, followed by automotive

9 Half of the PE professionals (48%) expect no change in the level of competition for fundraising – This represents hardly any change to last year

10 Growth financing is expected to be more easily available in 2017, while PE professionals expect recapitalization to be slightly more difficult – Stability is expected for the financing of leveraged buyouts

11 The current process uncertainty in the M&A environment for PE companies is widely expected to continue into 2017 (62% of respondents) – Only 16% of respondents have a more positive view

12 Active portfolio management is a key success factor for all PE managers – Add-on acquisitions and new products & services are once more considered to be the most important value creation measures
C. Results of the PE Outlook for 2017
About half of PE professionals – but fewer than last year – expect a growing number of M&A transactions with PE involvement in 2017
